MISCELLANEOUS.

PHYSICAL CHARACTER OF LANGUAGE.—"Please direct me to the largest bell founder in Cincinnati," said a stranger to me the other day.

I would have sent him to my friend G. H. Coffin, but hesitated whether his personal appearance would warrant me. I therefore replied, "I do not think there are any large ones. Mr. Coffin is the only one I am acquainted with, and he is but 5 feet 6 inches."

"Pshaw!" replied the enquirer. "I do not care for his size. Is he the largest bell founder in the place?"

"Well," replied I, cautiously, "I think he does perhaps make the largest bells in Cincinnati. Why?" replied the questioner, with a smile. "I don't care whether it is the largest or smallest man to tell, or whether he makes the biggest or the least sized bells ever made. What I want to know regards the business. Is he the most extensive bell-founder here?"

"Why sir," I replied, "I can't say, in fact; the bell founders here are pretty much of a size, some of them have more room, and others more depth."

"Is it possible you can't understand me yet? I want to know if his operations are on a scale larger than the others?"

"Oh, if that is what you want to know, call at his office and he will tell you all that you wish to learn on that subject."

There were two business men playing at cross purposes upon a question asked which adited of being laid up four different ways in application to its subject. The size of the man—the size of his bells—the size of his foundry, and the extent of his business operations.—Cin. Advertiser.

THE NEWSPAPERS.—It is a great mistake in female education to keep the young lady's time and attention devoted to the fashionable and polite literature of the day. If you would qualify her for conversation, you must give her something to talk about—give her an acquaintance with this actual world, and its transpiring events. Urge her to read the newspapers, and be sure she reads them daily, and in full, and in every number. History is of some importance; but the past world is dead, and we have nothing to do with it. Our thoughts and our concern should be for the present world, to know what it is, and to improve its condition. Let her have an intelligent opinion able to sustain intelligent and religious movements of our times.

OUTLET OF INTELLECTUAL PHYSICS OF BOSTON.—The Boston Evening Post, the Boston Daily Spy, the Boston Gazette, and the Boston Journal, are all good journals. They are well written, and study and labor in Boston in advance of the Mail Read. Passengers intending to travel by Rail Read a new step of the Depot, ready for the mail.

BAKER'S BRO.—S.

BY ROMA is a new and valuable collection of the Ocean Nut, with other ingredients, innocent, strengthening, and aromatic, to be used in the preparation of soups. It is particularly recommended to the Sick, as a very delicate and nutritious food, when other nutriment is unsatisfactory or indigestible. As a diet for the sick, and for invalids.
